Idōnea, ōrum. plur. Tacit. Fit places.

Idoneè.

Idōnèè, adv. ἐπιτηδείως, ἱκανῶς. Conveniently, fitly.

Idōneior, comp. ab idoneus, vel idonior.

† Idoneitas, atis, f. g. Fitnesse.

Idoneus, a, um. ἐπιτήδειος, πρόσηκων, dict. idoneus, qu. in se habens duplum donum, M S. ab εἶδος proprius, ut sit idoneum quod alicui propriè convenit, al. ab εἶδος forma qu. secundum formam. Proper, meet, convenient, due, able, sufficient, substantiall or sound, profitable.

Idulis ovis quæ omnibus Idibus Jovi immolabatur. A Sheepe offered to Jupiter in all the Ides, Fest.

† Iduo, as. divido Hetrusca lingua, vide idus, id autem iduo possit duci ab ἰδεῖν videre, videndi sensus is est, quo præcipuè corpora distinguimus, unde dividendi vox Beeman. iduo est εἰς δύω, ita & iduo possit esse in duo, vide M. To divide, vide idus.

Idus, uum, id'bus. f. g. Mac. dies est decimus quintus mensis Martii, Maii, Junii, & Octobris, in reliquis decimus tertius. Itaque cum dicimus ipsis idibus, intelligitur mensis medius circiter. alii putant idus dici quod eâ die plena luna videatur, à videndo vidus appellatus, mox literam u. detractam, sicut contra quod Græci ἰδεῖν dicunt, nos n. litera addita videre dicimus. Nonnullis placet idus dictas vocabulo Græco ἀπὸ τῦ εἴδους, quod eo die plenam speciem luna demonstraret. Alii idus vocant diem qui dividit mensem, nam iduare dividere est, unde vidua quasi valdè idua, id est, valdè divisa, ab idibus autem denominationem sumunt septem dies nonas immediate subsequentes; non quod ipsæ sunt idus, sed quod eas antecedant, unde octavo, septimo, sexto, quinto, quarto, tertio & pridiè idus dicimus, hoc est, octavo, septimo, sexto vel quinto, die ante idus, Macr. Gal. ab edendo quod ii dies apud veteres epularum essent, al. qd. apud Thuscos eadem dies itis fuerit dicta. Jovis fiduciam significans. alii arbitrantur iduare, quod est dividere, vocem esse Hetruscam, datum nomen idibus idcirco, quod velut in duas partes dividant mensem, cum ut plurimum medium attingant. al. ab εἶδος vel ἴδεσθαι, quod circa illum diem plena facie coruscat Luna, al. ab ove iduli quæ omnibus idibus Jovi mactabatur, alii ab εἶδος, alii ab itis, alii ab idis, Bec. In arithmeticâ numerus binarius est primus qui dividitur, & quidem in principium Talmudicè דן est duo, Græc. δύω & δίς, unde δύο & Lat. dis quod habet vim sejungendi ab alio, & est διχοτομία prima & principalis omnium divisionum, unde antiquis iduo est εἰς δύω & ampliùs dividuo, á dis, ve, & iduo, vide Alex. l. 3. c. 18. vide etiam Macr. lib 1. Sat. cap. 15. Of the Ides of every Moneth.

Jecur, ŏris. vel jecinoris, n. g. כבד chebad, ἧπαρ à gravedine vel dignitate, Isid. quod ignis ibi habeat sedem, cujus etymi rationem planè non video. Fortè dicatur jecur à jucunditate cordis, nam cor lætum facit & hilarum, unde Græc. ἧπαρ παρὰ τὸ ἥδω, τὸ εὐφραίνομαι, ἥδαρ καὶ ἧπαρ ex verbo ἥδω quod signif. hilarare, lætum reddere, nam ut inquit Etym. διʼ αὐτῦ εὐφραινόμεθα, καὶ ἐν τούτῳ τῷ μέρει τὸ τῆς ἡδονῆς, καὶ τὸ τῆς ἐπιθυμίας ἔγκειται. The Liver of a man or beast, Jecoris vena, vide Choledoches, Mart. à יקר jacar.
